Exploring, Connecting and Promoting Vietnamese Adoptee Voices

Adopted Vietnamese International (AVI) was launched in April 2000 on the 25th anniversary of end the Viet Nam War. It is a volunteer network that is dedicated to all individuals who were adopted during the Viet Nam War period, from the years of French colonial rule in the 1950s, from the 1960s -1970s era of conflict with America and its allies, and the approximately 3000 more orphans who migrated to the West in the final days of April 1975 in the mass-evacuation known as Operation Babylift. AVI is based in Australia and has an international membership including individuals from the US, UK, Canada, France and Sweden.

AVI is dedicated to providing opportunities for adopted Vietnamese to explore our history together and to connect with each other. AVI also aims to promote our unique insights on adoption and build networks with the wider community made up of adoptive parents and birth parents, other trans-racial adoption communities, younger generations of adopted Vietnamese, general members of the Vietnamese Diaspora and other cultural communities. Since its launch almost ten years ago, the AVI network has offered a range of Internet resources, creative projects, adoptee events and research.
